J. Reams, of Portland, --- Francis, of Eugene, Harry Waggoner and Roy Rickard, of Corvallis. These men, with the exception of Rickard, were charged with gambling, and released on $25 bonds. They were to appear before the court at 9 o'clock this morning, but only Reams did so. He pleaded guilty and was fined $20. Francis and Waggoner failed to show up, having hired a buggy and driven to Albany last night, catching the next train north.

Plenty of Booze

Rickard was also taken in tow, but he was so drunk that he couldn't get away. It is the opinion of Chief Wells that the others had intended to make Rickard their victim in the gambling game, but he got too drunk eight days the special rates were too quick. In the place were in force. Our advices from all found fifteen full bottles of beer and a goodly number of empty ones. Reams confessed that in the gambling $100 had been on the board.

Law Will Get Men

While Waggoner and Francis got away, they forfeited $25 each, and should they ever return to Corvallis will be caught and turned over to the Circuit Court. Wells thinks it would be best for the public that they remain away, and if they do come they will find that it would have been better had they remained while here. Wells is also a little incensed at the liveryman who took them to Albany, though it may be he did not know he was taking escaping prisoners.
